Response To Applicant's Amendment

Applicant's amendment made to independent claim 3 in the second invention in an effort to link the second invention to the first invention after a restriction requirement was made is considered non-responsive. Applicant, in response to the restriction requirement, has to elect a set of claims or a single invention for prosecution under 35 USC 121. The introduction of "...on preferences for associative and renewal buying..." in the limitation "collecting statistics on preferences for associative and renewal buying from training data" in independent claim 3 renders the Applicant's response to the restriction requirement improper and therefore, the Applicant's arguments are moot in view of the above remarks.
